SCOUTING

THE SHOPS with Sally

Sam and Sue Ann are angels, really—but the moment school is out we begin to have our doubts. "Mama, can I make some candy? Mama, I wish I had a monkey. Mama, can Johnny sleep here tonight? Mama, what can I do?"

Then we found them jumping up and down on the guest room bed, and if it hadn't been for the strong inner springs installed by the Daly City Mattress company, all would have been ruined. As it was, we had to send our best spread to the Beeson Cleaners for a general renovation.

After giving our little darlings each a sound spanking we set them firmly down to lunch. If we do say so ourselves, it was a grand lunch—tender, sizzling ham from Robertson's Egg store, lettuce and tomato salad (crisp and fresh from Westlake Market), and the nicest watermelon we have had this year (also from Westlake Market, at only 2c a pound).

We felt quite happy until we discovered that our enterprising offspring had started a soft drink stand on the front lawn, with chocolate milk and orange juice from the Mission Creamery. They were doing quite a business, too!

Effecting a speedy foreclosure, accompanied by wails in the background, we left for town with some trepidation. We did find some lovely bargains, though. Daly City Cut-Rate Market is featuring fresh fruit and vegetable combinations for 25c this week that are really outstanding. Just as a sample of prices there, lettuce is 3 solid heads for 5c; ripe cantaloupes, 3 for 10c; and napkins, any color, 4½c for a package of 80.

At Granucci Ravioli, Marca Reale tomato paste is selling at the low price of 6 cans for only 23c. They also have some lovely cherries—so pretty you hate to eat them. Peaches there were very nice, too; and Blue Rose rice 5c a pound.

Future Mrs. Di Maggio

Dorothy Arnold, blonde film actress, will become Mrs. Joe Di Maggio "sometime in the future," she announced recently. The slugging outfielder for the New York Yankees met her when she was singing in a New York night club.

Vernazzas Win In Radio Contest

James, Joseph, and Lorraine Vernazza were this week announced winners of the finals in the Benny Walker radio competition held last Tuesday evening over Station KGO. As a result, the eighteen-year-old twins, Joseph and James, with their fifteen-year-old sister, Lorraine, have been signed for a week's paid engagement at the Golden Gate theatre, San Francisco.

Featured members of the Jefferson Union Hi Indians of Rhythm, under the direction of Dante P. Lembi, the trio have appeared many times with the high school band, and twice made radio appearances. Last Tuesday night in the finals the twins played a special accordion arrangement of the "Blue Danube," while Lorraine sang "Little Sir Echo."

The twins graduated this year from Jefferson Union high school. Their sister is a sophomore. Parents of the talented musicians are Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Vernazza, 269 Westlake avenue.

SAN MATEO EXHIBIT IS SUCCESS

Thousands Throng To See Lovely Floral Displays

With an attendance which, at present rate, will attain a total of between ten and fifteen thousand, including hundreds from other states and foreign lands, San Mateo county's first exhibit, now entering its third and final week in the Mission Trails Building on Treasure Island, is described by S. F. P. I. officers as "an outstanding success."

Since the small room allotted to individual counties, which has been adapted as the "San Mateo County Theatre," seats only 55 persons at each showing of the S. F. P. I. color-sound film, standing room has been at a premium, many week-end shows attracting 75 or 80, with the overflow packing the corridor, attendants report. The film is repeated as fast as it can be rewound during continuous showings from noon to 8 p. m. daily.

"Unquestionably, San Mateo county and S. F. P. I. have stolen the show," say regular Mission Trails staff members. The S. F. P. I. floral exhibit, with its redwood trees 20 to 30 feet high, huge rhododendrons in full bloom, giant "glades" and fragrant roses, is enthusiastically commented on by visitors as one of the most beautiful at the Fair.

The county exhibit will be repeated, with a new and different floral display, September 15 to 30. Meanwhile private showings of the film are being arranged for many groups and organizations, to follow completion of the June exhibit at the Fair.

Three hundred old and famous watches from Switzerland which present a chronological history of mechanized time-keeping will be shown at the Hall of Fame of Time at the New York World's Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Thompson, Los Banos avenue, are the proud parents of a daughter born Thursday, June 8. Mother and daughter returned home Sunday.

Mrs. A. Steelhamer and twin daughters, Edna and Esther, visited friends here Sunday. Although they have made their home in Los Angeles for the past three years, Mrs. Steelhamer and family formerly lived on Crocker avenue, Daly City. They plan to spend two weeks in San Francisco and Yosemite Valley before returning home.

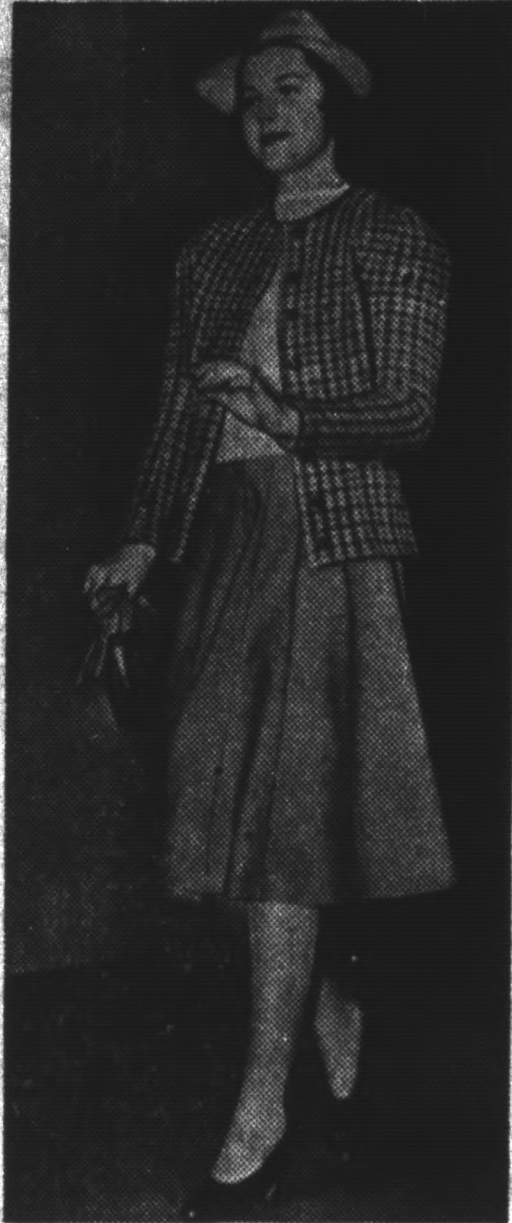

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. King, Templeton avenue, motored to Palo Alto yesterday for a swim in the new municipal pool. Their son, David, will leave Friday for Klamath Falls, Oregon, to spend the summer vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. William W. Sunderland, Miriam street, are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter early Saturday morning at St. Luke's hospital, San Francisco.

Collarless Type

Interesting contrasts in suits continue to be a fashion highlight. Here is a suit presented at a style clinic held in the Merchandise Mart in Chicago, which is particularly noteworthy in that it tops a black skirt with a color-drenched tweed jacket. A most likable feature about the jacket is that it is of the simply styled collarless type.

Strawberries, peaches, apples and lemons decorate the new tailored blouses for wear with suits. Keep an eye out for matched sets consisting of fruit studs with cuff links to wear with tailored shirts. Matching lapel clips may also be had. The fruit studs are one of the most amusing of the wealth of new decorative gadgets bobbing up to decorate spring suits and adorn spring frocks.

Buy at home.

Make it a point to visit your beauty parlor at least once a week and at the time you have a manicure, have a treatment for your hands, having the fingers massaged and a good cream rubbed thoroughly into the skin.

A sign in front of one of the most prominent restaurants in Phoenix, Arizona, reads: "2,075-and-one-half miles to the New York World's Fair." It points east along the main thoroughfare.

KNOW THYSELF

by DR. GEORGE D. GREER

WHAT HAPPENS IN 'SHELL SHOCK'?

CONTRARY to popular opinion, shell-shock is not the result of injury to the brain, but is an emotional shock. The basis of it is fear—terrible, conquering fear—and the result is a deeply seated emotional fear-complex. It can happen many places besides in war, and loud noises like bursting shells are not necessary to produce it. During the World war many new cases were developed because of the terrific emotional conflict between fear of death and fear of failing to obey orders to go "over the top." Some of the most pitiful cases have come out of that awful hell of men's emotions, war.

The attention which was given to

Automobile Club Gives Advice To Motorists Who Plan Touring Trip

Virtually everyone who travels the highways and byways, which alluringly stretch before the motor car owner, asks the question: "What shall I take along on the touring trip?", according to the touring department of the National Automobile club. It is usually answered as follows:

"What is taken on the touring trip should represent the least possible pack with which one can get along." Many travelers start a trip before realizing that the luggage is too bulky—a foe of convenience, comfort and safety.

Safety in touring calls for plenty of room for the driver. The more his position is restricted, the greater his fatigue. Exhaustion is too great a factor in safety to be ignored, so the front seat should never be crowded.

Remembering this, the tourist may begin to consider the individual items of touring equipment, starting with those that meet personal needs.

Clothing, perhaps, comes first in the matter of preparing luggage. Here is the point at which it is easy to stray—usually on the side of taking too much, reports the National Automobile club. It is not simple to prescribe clothing requirements of an individual tourist. Experience, however, provides a general guide by which the average person can decide for himself just what his needs will be.

Fundamentally, any article taken—from footwear to headgear—should be the type that lends itself to universal use. For men, sport suits with slacks for driving and regular trousers for time spent outside the car are ideal all-around garments.

The woman motor tourist, selecting her outfit for the trip, should concentrate upon garments that conform to the sport motif. They permit of greater freedom and comfort, look better after harder usage and are less susceptible to wear and tear of motor travel.

Limiting the luggage to essentials, the touring party should be able to pack the car so that all but the smallest items can be carried outside the car or in the trunk in the rear. That is where it should be.

A camera and spare roll of film in the driver's compartment will increase the pleasure of the trip and afford a method of later reliving the route traveled.

The car's outfit, like that of its occupants should be kept as small as possible. Tools needed for minor repairs should be taken, reports the National Automobile club. Nothing is so disconcerting as to need to change a tire and lack the tools to do it. Tire changing equipment, together with small wrenches and pliers that may be needed for minor adjustments should be kept in easy reach.

For keeping the car clean, at least so far as the windshield, windows and the interior are concerned, a few soft rags and a whisk broom should be carried along. A clean windshield is essential to safety.

Every long-distance journey, of course, should include a first-aid kit with aromatic spirits of ammonia, iodine swab, an eye wash, adhesive tape and such. A flashlight will also come in handy.

These items cover the needs for an average trip. The individual may want to modify them to fit his special requirements, but, in this case, he should bear in mind that the less the car is burdened, the better goes the tour.

Will Japs Come?

Bristol bay, designated on above map, is the center of Alaskan salmon fishing during the one-month season opening Sunday. For the past 10 years Japanese floating canneries have invaded these American waters and their return this year may precipitate trouble. Certain Soviet Russian waters nearby have been closed to the Jap fishermen.

Scouting the Shops

● Coming home, we found our trepidation only too well justified. Sue Ann had purchased a large bottle of wave-set from Edwards Drug store (only 8c) and was blissfully dripping from head to foot. Near her was Sam using our facial tissues (250 for 10c, also at Edwards) to clean his gun.

● Following a general washing-up of all concerned (in the new bathroom so beautifully equipped by A. M. Harrison), a picnic seemed to be the best solution for wounded feelings. With some fresh lunch meat from Farmer's Meat company (they have a grand assortment of cheese, too, not to mention nice big frankfurters), we quickly made some sandwiches.

● From Lucca Ravioli we had bought some lovely black Mission figs at 5c a pound, which we included; and a tall can of ripe olives for only 9c. (Lucca's also have many other worthwhile specials this week. See their ad on page 7.)

● The youngsters were so tired that night that dinner went off beautifully. We had a nice big roast chicken from Milo's (29c a pound), some fresh peas (3 pounds for 10c), and the children's

"Hound of the Baskervilles" On Screen With Great Cast

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's "The Hound of the Baskervilles," one of literature's most shocking, spine-chilling mystery stories and the greatest of all Sherlock Holmes' astounding adventures, has at last been transcribed to the screen.

Tall, spare, hawklike Basil Rathbone, in the perfect-fitting role of the great detective, is co-featured with Richard Greene and Wendy Barrie in the Twentieth Century-Fox production which is now playing at the Daly City theatre.

In this great story the master of a thousand mysteries pits his cunning against the giant unearthly beast that roams the fog-shrouded English moor with blazing eyes and bared fangs, terrorizing the countryside, striking horror into the hearts of two young lovers and leaving a trail so terrifying that only Sherlock Holmes dare follow.

Nigel Bruce plays the famous Dr. Watson, the great detective's constant companion, Boswell and amazed observer. Also included in the cast are Lionel Atwill, John Carradine, Barlowe Borland, Beryl Mercer, Morton Lowry and Ralph Forbes.

Companion feature on the current bill is "Alexander Graham Bell," starring Loretta Young, Don Ameche and Henry Fonda.

Members of the Columbia Scholastic Press association, composed of school editors and writers throughout the country, have buried at the New York World's Fair a copper "time-capsule" designed to preserve the history and roster of the organization for 3,000 years.

Thirty-five bronze bells in a 165-foot carillon tower sound the hour, the half and quarter hours day and night at the New York World's Fair. The carillon is part of Belgium's exhibit. Three evenings each week carillon concerts are given.

BASIL RATHBONE as Sherlock Holmes, casts a protective shadow for WENDY BARRIE and RICHARD GREENE in Twentieth Century-Fox's production of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's "The Hound of the Baskervilles," opening tonight at the Daly City theatre.

How ice cream can be cooked and frozen in one operation by use of a special combination of refrigerator coils is one of the culinary wonders to be demonstrated at the New York World's Fair. The demonstration will take place in the Casino of Science which seats 650 persons.

All of Our Fruits Are Health-Giving

Citrus Varieties Have High Vitamin C Content

By EDITH M. BARBER

HUMAN nature is so contrary that most of us dislike to be told what's good for us. When it comes to fruits, however, we are glad of another excuse besides the fact that we like them, to use them often.

The most important contribution which fruits make to general nutrition is through their vitamin C content. In the absence of an adequate amount of this vitamin, scurvy develops. For this reason and long before the word vitamin had been coined a supply of fresh food was included on long sailing voyages and exploring expeditions. In a book, "Hell on Ice," which depicts the experiences of a polar expedition of the eighties, note is made of the barrel of lime juice which was saved from the sinking ship by one of the crew, who dove into the icy water to recover it.

While acute cases of scurvy are practically unknown in this country today, certain ailments which are often considered unimportant and sometimes designated as a "run-down condition" may result when vitamin C is not used liberally. Perhaps the "growing pains" which were so common among children a few decades ago resulted from sub-acute scurvy.

Citrus fruits and tomato juice are first on the list of vitamin C contributors, but most fruits supply more or less liberally.

Fruit Bread Pudding.

6 or 7 slices bread
3 or 4 tablespoons butter
1 can shredded pineapple

Butter bread on loaf and cut in slices 1/4 inch thick and remove crusts. Select a bowl, 5 or 6 inches in diameter with a rounding bottom, and grease with butter. Line with bread, cutting one piece to fill spaces between slices. Pour in the pineapple and cover with sliced bread. Select plate to fit just inside of bowl and weight it down into pudding. Put in refrigerator for 24 hours. Turn out of mold and serve with whipped or plain cream. Instead of the pineapple, canned berries may be used.

Lemon Meringue Pie.

1/2 cup flour
1 cup sugar
1 1/2 cups boiling water
2 eggs
1 tablespoon butter
3 tablespoons lemon juice
Grated rind of one lemon
4 tablespoons sugar

Mix flour and sugar and stir in boiling water slowly. When well blended boil over flame for five minutes, stirring constantly. Cook 15 minutes over boiling water, stirring occasionally. Beat egg yolks and add a little of the hot mixture to them and then pour back into rest of hot mixture. Add butter, lemon juice and rind and cook over hot water until the mixture is thick. Cool and pour mixture into a baked pie crust. Beat egg whites until stiff, beaten in 4 tablespoons of sugar and spread meringue over filling. Bake in a moderately slow oven, 325 degrees Fahrenheit until meringue is brown.

Mince and Cranberry Pie.

1 1/2 cups mince meat
1 1/2 cups cooked cranberries
1/2 cup sugar
Pie crust

Mix mince meat prepared as for cranberries and sugar. Place in a pie tin lined with pastry. Place one-half inch strips of pastry over top to form lattice work. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) about 15 minutes, then lower temperature to 350 degrees and bake 20 minutes.

Fruit Meringue Cream.

1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 egg yolks
3 egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla or
1/2 teaspoon lemon extract
3 cups scalded milk
1/2 cup powdered sugar
1/2 cup toasted coconut
3 cups sliced oranges and bananas

Mix the dry ingredients, add the egg yolks slightly beaten, and pour in gradually the scalded milk. Cook 15 minutes in a double boiler, stirring constantly until thickened, stir-

Terry Pin's Tips on MAKING HAY

HAY is as comfortable as the softest bed, and you do not have to make it as often.

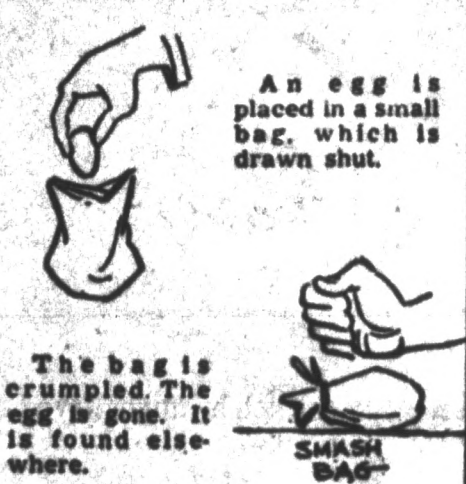

Make hay while the sun shines, say the prophets. Let them try it in the spring when the sun shines.

Hay has many uses. Without hay, tramps would sleep uncomfortably, and hostesses of barn dances would be hard up for decoration.

Apple Pandowdy.

Pastry
1 quart sliced tart apples
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon salt

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons water

Line deep baking dish with pastry. Fill with apples, mixed with sugar, spices and salt. Add two-thirds of the molasses, the butter and water. Cover with pastry and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for one hour. Remove from oven and cut pastry with a knife and fork and mix thoroughly with the apples. Add remaining molasses, return to slow oven (325 degrees Fahrenheit) and cook another hour.

Iceland, popularly supposed to be an Arctic waste, reveals her riches and beauty at the New York's World Fair. The island's livestock, dairies, fisheries, and scenery are shown. On a huge map, Viking ships "sail" for Greenland and North America, tracing the route of Leif Eriksson and Thorfinn Karlsefni, eleventh century discoverers.

For the first time in the history of expositions, the blind will be enabled to "visualize" the wonders of the New York World's Fair. Through the coordinated use of Braille books and scale models, blind children will read the story of the fair and form conceptions of the size and shape of buildings. Color will be conveyed to them through emotional suggestions. Thus green will be "quiet and cool;" red, "intense and exciting."

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

by Thornton W. Burgess

WHAT REDDY FOX WAS WATCHING

It is a proven fact, my dear, who looks beyond will miss what's near.

THAT was the way it was with Reddy Fox. It was really too funny, only there was no one there to appreciate the joke. There sat Reddy Fox so intently watching something in the distance that he hadn't eyes for anything else, and right under his very own tail lay little Mite Meadow Mouse, hardly daring to breathe. Now, there is nothing under the sun that Reddy would rather have to eat than a tender young Meadow Mouse, and here he was almost sitting on one without knowing it. In watching and wishing for something that he couldn't get, Reddy was missing something which he might have had, which is a thing often done by a great many people. However, it was a good thing for little Mite, and goes to prove how often the loss of one is the gain of another.

"He acts as if he were trying to find something," thought Reddy.

Now, the thing that was interesting Reddy so much was nothing more or less than the queer way in which Peter Rabbit was hopping this way and that way, first to one side of the Lone Little Path that comes down across the Green Meadows, then to the other side. He hopped over to every extra thick bunch of grass. Every few hops he sat up very straight to look and listen. That was why Reddy sat still right where he was. He knew that the minute he tried to creep nearer to Peter he would be seen, for it was clear that Peter was unusually watchful.

"He acts as if he were trying to find something," thought Reddy. "I wonder if he has any new babies and has lost one." He smacked his lips at the thought, and little Mite shivered at the sound. "Yes, sir, he certainly is trying to find something. Now, I must find out what it is. Hello, here come the Merry Little Breezes! They know almost all that goes on on the Green Meadows, and probably they know what Peter is doing. I'll see what I can find out from them."

Now, as you all know, Reddy Fox is wonderfully sly and clever. He knew that if he should ask right out what Peter was doing, the Merry Little Breezes would be quite likely to refuse to tell him. So as they came nearer Reddy pretended that he was just resting. His eyes were half closed, and you would never have guessed that he was in the least interested in what was going on around him. The Merry Little Breezes were in a hurry, and were going right past, but Reddy's long, soft, red fur was too much of a temptation. They just had to stop for a minute to rumple it up. Reddy grinned.

"That feels pretty nice on a hot day," said he. "I wish you would stay and cool me off."

"We can't!" said one thoughtless Little Breeze. "We've got too much to do. We are trying to help Danny Meadow Mouse."

"Oh!" replied Reddy. "That's different. I wouldn't keep you for the world if Danny needs your help. I didn't suppose Danny needed help from anyone."

"He does," returned the thoughtless Little Breeze. "He needs everybody's help. You see, one of his babies has run away and is lost. We are trying to find it for him."

"I suppose that is what Peter Rabbit is doing, too," said Reddy, yawning lazily, and quite as if he wasn't at all interested.

"Yes," replied the thoughtless Little Breeze. "You know, Peter and Go, Nip, that must be the old wolf they tell about in the "Red Riding Hood" story.

Danny are very good friends. Now, we must hurry on, for we want to find that little lost Mouse if we can."

With that the Merry Little Breezes danced away. Reddy watched them, all the time grinning wickedly. You see, he had found out what he wanted to know.

"So Danny Meadow Mouse has some babies! My, my, my, but that sounds good to me!" he exclaimed. "I think I will join in this search. I would like to find that lost baby myself. I certainly would!" Reddy smacked his lips as he said this, and poor little Mite shook all over at the sound.

Then Reddy started off in the direction of Peter Rabbit. You see, he suspected that Peter must have some reason for looking over there.

Class Schedule For Fiesta Ready

Schedules of classes for the ninth annual San Mateo County Fiesta-Rodeo are available this week, according to an announcement made today by Secretary-Manager Chester P. Lipman.

Seven hundred of the 40-page booklets listing all classes, prizes, rules and regulations for the professional, agricultural and floral displays, and 500 of the booklets for amateur flowers and flower arrangements are being mailed to past contestants, while others interested may obtain the schedules at the Fiesta office, 72 Third avenue, San Mateo.

All possible encouragement will be given amateur contestants this year, stated Lipman, with 200 classes of entry listed, compared to 100 in 1938. Prizes for amateur winners will total $1500.

The 718 professional classes in agriculture and floral displays will offer prizes totaling $17,000. Largest single award is $600 for the championship orchid display, while lowest prize is for $5.

Sufficient copies of the schedules will be available for all prospective contestants, Lipman said, as there are 1500 professional and 1000 amateur schedules printed. Requests by mail will be answered.

A frivolous but utterly fetching addenda to your new spring ensemble for dress-up wear would be one of the little topknots of flowers shrouded in yards of veiling which masquerade under the name of hats.

Keep an eye out in your favorite store for the new monogram pins to be had both in silver and gilt finish. The pins are so reasonably priced that you will be able to afford both gold and silver finish ones.
